Human Perception of Visual Information

2022-01-01

recent years have witnessed important advancements in our understanding of the psychological underpinnings of subjective properties of visual information such as aesthetics memorability or induced emotions concurrently computational models of objective visual properties such as semantic labelling and geometric relationships have made significant breakthroughs using the latest achievements in machine learning and large scale data collection there has also been limited but important work exploiting these breakthroughs to improve computational modelling of subjective visual properties the time is ripe to explore how advances in both of these fields of study can be mutually enriching and lead to further progress this book combines perspectives from psychology and machine learning to showcase a new unified understanding of how images and videos influence high level visual perception particularly interestingness affective values and emotions aesthetic values memorability novelty complexity visual composition and stylistic attributes and creativity these human based metrics are interesting for a very broad range of current applications ranging from content retrieval and search storytelling to targeted advertising education and learning and content filtering work already exists in the literature that studies the psychological aspects of these notions or investigates potential correlations between two or more of these human concepts attempts at building computational models capable of predicting such notions can also be found using state of the art machine learning techniques nevertheless their performance proves that there is still room for improvement as the tasks are by nature highly challenging and multifaceted requiring thought on both the psychological implications of the human concepts as well as their translation to machines
