The Oxford Handbook of Environmental Criminology

2018-02-08

the study of how the environment local geography and physical locations influence crime has a long history that stretches across many research traditions these include the neighborhood effects approach developed in the 1920s the criminology of place and a newer approach that attends to the perception of crime in communities aided by new technologies and improved data reporting in recent decades research in environmental criminology has developed rapidly within each of these approaches yet research in the subfield remains fragmented and competing theories are rarely examined together the oxford handbook of environmental criminology takes a unique approach and synthesizes the contributions of existing methods to better integrate the subfield as a whole gerben j n bruinsma and shane d johnson have assembled a cast of top scholars to provide an in depth source for understanding how and why physical setting can influence the emergence of crime affect the environment and impact individual or group behavior the contributors address how changes in the environment global connectivity and technology provide more criminal opportunities and new ways of committing old crimes they also explore how crimes committed in countries with distinct cultural practices like china and west africa might lead to different spatial patterns of crime this is a state of the art compendium on environmental criminology that reflects the diverse research and theory developed across the western world

Wrongfully Convicted

Rethinking Serial Murder, Spree Killing, and Atrocities

2014-11-20

multiple killings by serial or spree killers and the mass violence seen in war crimes and other atrocities have typically been understood as discrete category types which can foster the view that there are fundamentally different kinds of human beings including deviants who are born evil and innately given to sadism or a callous lack of empathy in contrast this book considers the violence of these deviants in terms of larger questions about human violence therefore in addition to describing the life histories of a sample of individual serial and spree murderers the book includes analysis of macro level phenomena such as genocide mass rape and killing and torture occurring under conditions of war state authorization or political upheaval the chief claim of the book is that given the right combination of factors occurring at different levels of analysis virtually anyone can emerge as a killer or perpetrator of atrocities while it is crucial to understand individual killers in terms of the details of their biographies it is equally crucial to understand political atrocities in terms of the details of their histories and to see that persons and groups are always the product of complexly interacting assemblage processes
